'A Window of Life' Reading Ruth Park

Public lecture by Fiona Kelly McGregor, ASAL Patron

Wednesday 14 February 2024, 5pm - 7pm

This lecture will explore my personal interaction with Ruth Park's opus ranging from her fictional works Playing Beatie Bow (1980) through to The Harp in the South trilogy and Swords and Crowns and Rings (1977). It will also examine Park's Sydney-based non-fiction, particularly Fishing in the Styx (1993) part two of her two-volume autobiography and The Companion Guide to Sydney (1973).

Fiona Kelly McGregor is a novelist, essayist and art critic who has published eight books, most recently Iris, nominated for the Miles Franklin and NSW Premier's Awards, the Stella Prize, and more, and essay collection Buried Not Dead. McGregor's novel Indelible Ink won Age Book of the Year.
