Global Vietnam is a two-week intensive field school that offers students the opportunity to experience first-hand the interconnected issues of gender, labour and migration in contemporary Vietnam from a broad cultural studies perspective. The course is based in Hanoi and, in addition to offering basic language and cultural awareness instruction, draws upon expertise from ANU staff, local academics and NGO staff.

"Being able to witness in-country the issues we were discussing in class gave me vital insight into the course material and my studies generally. This course has fundamentally changed my perspective and developed my critical thinking."

--Darcey Hoyle, 2nd year, Gender studies
